

THE WORLD'S HOWL CHART PUTS IT IN A LINE.

EXTRA.
2 O'CLOCK.
FIRE-SWEPT CITY.

Whirlwind of Flame Consumes Thirteen Blocks in Milwaukee.
FOUR KILLED, MANY INJURED.
Insurance Men Estimate the Losses at from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000.
3,000 PEOPLE MADE HOMELESS

Great Elevators Pour Out Magnificent Cataracts of Burning Grain.

WHILE THE FIRE WAS creating war and desolation north as far as Detroit street, one block above Buffalo, it had begun to eat backward south along East Water street for two whole squares, and then, apparently eating the background it wanted, it reached south to the river and went straight eastward for six squares. It stopped only when it reached Lake Michigan and could go no further.

When the fire began its backward movement from the place of its origin it picked up the store of J. P. Kistinger & Co., the Milwaukee Art Glass Works, the Wallace Block, six stories high, with the Milwaukee Chair Company, a vacant building owned by the Pitzer & Vogel Leather Company and the wholesale grocery store of Roudy, Peckham & Co.

The next building to succumb was the National Distilling Company, the Whiskey Trust supply of the State, at 79 to 83 Buffalo street.

Dens of frame buildings along Milwaukee and Jefferson streets, between Detroit and Chicago, as well as on Buffalo and Chicago streets, were licked up as they had been merely outlines of paper. All these buildings were consumed within half an hour of the time when the flames leaped over Broadway.

Suddenly the whirlwind, it was said, came east when the first alarm rang. It was now almost due south, and the fire cut a broad avenue of destruction through the Milwaukee River and Lake Michigan. In its path lay the big freight sheds and the yards of the Chicago and Northwestern road, together with the round-house and its valuable contents of rolling stock. The end of the freight shed at the corner of Chicago and Jefferson streets, was the first to ignite, and the flames soon spread to every part of the yards.

Fifteen long trains of freight cars stood on the Northwestern tracks, and when a billow of fire leaped across Van Buren street to the south end of the fire, it house a million dollars' worth of railroad property was doomed.

The south end of the freight-house was filled with oil and a volley of explosions shook the earth. The sparks from the low brick freight-house fell in showers upon a thousand freight cars piled up in the yards.

On and on the terrible, resistless wave of fire was sweeping, consuming everything in its path over to Jackson street and Broadway, and then following the south wind down Broadway to the corner of Lake Michigan.

Along Broadway it swept to the Weisel & Viller Manufacturing Company's plant at Chicago street, and to No. 10 engine-house on Broadway. When it reached the Weisel & Viller plant the Department of Fire prepared an attempt to cut it off with dynamite.

Seeing that the fire must surely reach the works, the men rapidly forced all the tanks, and then sank them and fled for their lives. As a result, Milwaukee will have its usual gas supply within a day or two.

Worth & Hammer's livery stable, on Broadway, containing hundreds of horses was in the path of the fire. Some horses were safely taken away, while a number were stampeded.

The L. J. C. C. Kindergarten, the Temperance Institute and the Hildebrand Vinegar Works were also destroyed despite the dynamite, with innumerable small residences. Hansen's malt-house, within a few rods of the border line of Lake Michigan, with an adjoining distillery, was also destroyed. When they caught, the elevator suddenly fell down to the top of the high ventilating shaft, and it was soon ablaze.

A howling blast of wind sent the flames across the street, and in an instant the malt-house, with its tall tower, broke out in spots about the water front. Milwaukee, Milwaukee, Milwaukee, after the hottest period was passed, and from the lower floors the burning grain was hurled down to the street.

Then from the windows of the large malt-house and from the eaves came jets of fire. The burning grain was hurled down to the street.

A large ventilating wheel in the face of the upper story was burning and whirling away from the burning grain. The burning grain was hurled down to the street.

The heat was intense within a block of the malt-house and it was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood. After their march to the north and east the flames swept a red path to the south and east.

Across the way from Roudy & Kip's was the store of J. P. Kistinger & Co., at 100 West Third street. Kistinger & Co. was a large store, and it was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

Three thousand people are homeless, and forty-six acres of blackened desolation within Milwaukee's boundaries mark the path over which the fire has swept. Militia are guarding sidewalks and crossings, and through the streets the members of the Milwaukee Light Horse Squadron ride with drawn sabres.

Although the fire is now entirely under control the ruins in places are burning fiercely, and it will be several days before the last spark is extinguished.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

The engines were engaged so long that it was fully twenty minutes after the first alarm that the fire was under control. It was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

The engines were engaged so long that it was fully twenty minutes after the first alarm that the fire was under control. It was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

The engines were engaged so long that it was fully twenty minutes after the first alarm that the fire was under control. It was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

FRICK AND BOODLE.

Said to Have Brought a Large Sum to Chairman Carter.

Carnegie's Man in Conference with Cabinet Ministers.

Report that $500,000 Was Placed in the Republican Safe To-Day.

All the fat tried out of the Pennsylvania manufacturers by those expert manipulators, Henry Clay Frick, of the Carnegie Works, and Christopher Lyman Magee, the star of the campaign, were in the city yesterday. Frick was placed in Chairman Carter's refrigerator this morning.

Magee and Frick arrived in the city last night, the former stopping at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and the latter at the Holland House, where Secretary of War Elihu is also stopping.

The sum and substance of Mr. Frick's offering for the Republican campaign has been placed in the safe to-day. By some the amount is placed as high as $500,000.

It was Postmaster-General John W. Wadsworth who induced Mr. Frick to take up a supplementary collection among the highly protected iron manufacturers.

When Mr. Carter, the Treasurer, filed his report, he found that they would be short at least a million, according to their schedule of expenditures. In this emergency an appeal for aid or assistance in getting aid was made to Milwaukee, who in a few days ago had been in the city.

Mr. Wadsworth has already been engaged, and he has been in the city for some time. He has been in the city for some time.

The conference had not broken up at 12 o'clock.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

CAMPAIGN SAYINGS ILLUSTRATED.

CARL SCHURZ—The question is whether our National elect. is shall become mere auction sales.

BARONESS BLANC AS A STAR.

She Will Return to the Stage Set for Next Monday, on Mamie Hannan's Charges.

Her Debut to Be in a New Play at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

The secret leaked out to-day, through Manager Frank G. Potter, that the Baroness Blanche, wife of Baron Frederic S. Blanc, contemplates a return to the stage as a star with her own company, an adaptation of one of Dumas's works and in "The Fringe of Society."

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

ROUNDSMAN DAILEY'S TRIAL.

The Girl and Her Mother in Sore Distention.

James McNeill Knocked Down in a Yonkers Saloon.

After nearly six months' delay Roundsman Matthew F. Dailey is to be tried next Monday in General Sessions for alleged criminal assault upon pretty Mamie Hannan and the alleged clothing of her mother, Mrs. Annie Hannan, of 218 Monroe street.

The criminal offense for which Dailey was indicted is alleged to have been committed last March in the back room of Joe Miller's saloon, at Pitt and Broome streets, but it was two months later when it became known through Dailey's arrest and alleged kidnapping of the mother of the girl who accuses him of effecting her ruin.

Since his indictment the accused policeman has been doing guard duty at the House of Detention and drabbing the full pay of a roundsman for services of a vastly inferior nature. He has all along, it is said, boasted of his "pull," and such a boast seems to have been well founded.

The Police Commissioners declined to pass on the merits of charges against Dailey, but he was ordered to stand trial.

Dailey, who is now in the House of Detention, is alleged to have been in the city for some time.

Dailey, who is now in the House of Detention, is alleged to have been in the city for some time.

Dailey, who is now in the House of Detention, is alleged to have been in the city for some time.

Dailey, who is now in the House of Detention, is alleged to have been in the city for some time.

Dailey, who is now in the House of Detention, is alleged to have been in the city for some time.

Dailey, who is now in the House of Detention, is alleged to have been in the city for some time.

FATAL POLITICAL DISCUSSION.

A Blow Under His Ear Supposed to Have Caused Death.

YONKERS, N. Y., Oct. 28.—At an early hour this morning a fight occurred in the saloon of William Jones, at 142 Riverside avenue, in this city, which resulted in the death of James McNeill.

At about 12:30 o'clock McNeill was in the saloon drinking when Thomas Duge and a man named Smith entered and began a political discussion.

Smith and Jones, the proprietor of the saloon, began to call each other names, when Smith, it is alleged, drew a knife.

A general fight then ensued. Duge approached McNeill and struck him a violent blow under the ear, which knocked him down.

McNeill got up and staggered out of the door, and on reaching the sidewalk, fell in an unconscious condition. He was seen to fall by James, who was a friend of McNeill's, who went over to McNeill and assisted in carrying him into the saloon.

Dr. Coons was notified, but when he arrived McNeill was dead. From the sharp examination which he made he said he could not tell whether the man had died from the blow on the jugular vein or from heart failure.

The police soon heard of the fatal affair, and Duge, Jones and Smith were arrested and taken to Police Headquarters. There it was made clear to Chief Magistrate that Duge had struck McNeill and that he believed to have been the cause of his death.

Chief Magistrate ordered Duge to be locked up, and Jones and Smith were merely held as witnesses.

Coverer Mitchell this forenoon implored a coroner to order an autopsy to be made to determine the cause of the man's death. It is shown that McNeill died from the effects of the blow Duge was held for trial on the charge of murder.

Duge, who is about thirty years of age, is employed as a clerk in George McGrath's grocery store on Riverside avenue.

McNeill was a son of ex-Secretary of the Interior, and his father was a member of the House of Representatives.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.
HAYTIAN PLOTTERS.

A Sailor's Story About Revolutionists' Work in This City.

He Says the Catharine Whiting Is Now Fitting Out.

Refused to Join the Expedition as Steward.

A despatch from London to-day stating that friends of the opponents of Hippolyte are endeavoring to raise funds there for the purpose of organizing a revolution in the Black Republic, has started a rumor in local shipping circles that a similar undertaking has been set on foot in this city.

While the British merchants in the West Indian trade have a grievance in the oppressive manner in which the Haytian Custom-House has been conducted by Hippolyte and his alleged discrimination against British trade, the motive for the rumored action of Americans in the matter seems to be of an entirely different character.

The story that obtains along the docks in South street is that the steamer Catharine Whiting is now undergoing a thorough overhauling and repairing with a view to shortly sailing for Haytian waters, where she will act either as a cruiser or as a transport to carry arms to the former Legitimists, who are now reported to be planning the overthrow of their conqueror, Hippolyte.

The Whiting is the craft which Minister Biot at first engaged to chase the South Portland to Venezuela during the recent insurrection in that country, and then rejected ostensibly because she was too slow and too old.

Although the rumor was general, an Evansville World reporter was unable to find any one who was possessed of any corroborative facts until he ran across Ed Morlock, a seaman who makes his headquarters at the lodging-house on South street.

According to Morlock he was formerly a steward on the Novelty, which, he says, was sent to Venezuela in the last of the last Haytian difficulty two years ago. J. W. Bowman, of Fort Monmouth, N. J., who is now in the city, was the captain of the ship, and he was the one who was in the city.

Mr. Bowman came to me some time ago, said Morlock to the reporter, and asked me to join the expedition. He said that he had an affair on hand and that the Whiting's connection with the Venezuelan revolution was a mistake.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

Mr. Bowman gave me to understand that the Whiting would be equipped with Gatling guns, so far as I know there are no arms on board, but I have heard and seen I think there is a plot to overthrow Hippolyte, and that there are revolutionists in this city.

EXTRA.

2 O'CLOCK.
FIRE-SWEPT CITY.

Whirlwind of Flame Consumes Thirteen Blocks in Milwaukee.
FOUR KILLED, MANY INJURED.
Insurance Men Estimate the Losses at from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000.
3,000 PEOPLE MADE HOMELESS

Great Elevators Pour Out Magnificent Cataracts of Burning Grain.

WHILE THE FIRE WAS creating war and desolation north as far as Detroit street, one block above Buffalo, it had begun to eat backward south along East Water street for two whole squares, and then, apparently eating the background it wanted, it reached south to the river and went straight eastward for six squares. It stopped only when it reached Lake Michigan and could go no further.

When the fire began its backward movement from the place of its origin it picked up the store of J. P. Kistinger & Co., the Milwaukee Art Glass Works, the Wallace Block, six stories high, with the Milwaukee Chair Company, a vacant building owned by the Pitzer & Vogel Leather Company and the wholesale grocery store of Roudy, Peckham & Co.

The next building to succumb was the National Distilling Company, the Whiskey Trust supply of the State, at 79 to 83 Buffalo street.

Dens of frame buildings along Milwaukee and Jefferson streets, between Detroit and Chicago, as well as on Buffalo and Chicago streets, were licked up as they had been merely outlines of paper. All these buildings were consumed within half an hour of the time when the flames leaped over Broadway.

Suddenly the whirlwind, it was said, came east when the first alarm rang. It was now almost due south, and the fire cut a broad avenue of destruction through the Milwaukee River and Lake Michigan. In its path lay the big freight sheds and the yards of the Chicago and Northwestern road, together with the round-house and its valuable contents of rolling stock. The end of the freight shed at the corner of Chicago and Jefferson streets, was the first to ignite, and the flames soon spread to every part of the yards.

Fifteen long trains of freight cars stood on the Northwestern tracks, and when a billow of fire leaped across Van Buren street to the south end of the fire, it house a million dollars' worth of railroad property was doomed.

The south end of the freight-house was filled with oil and a volley of explosions shook the earth. The sparks from the low brick freight-house fell in showers upon a thousand freight cars piled up in the yards.

On and on the terrible, resistless wave of fire was sweeping, consuming everything in its path over to Jackson street and Broadway, and then following the south wind down Broadway to the corner of Lake Michigan.

Along Broadway it swept to the Weisel & Viller Manufacturing Company's plant at Chicago street, and to No. 10 engine-house on Broadway. When it reached the Weisel & Viller plant the Department of Fire prepared an attempt to cut it off with dynamite.

Seeing that the fire must surely reach the works, the men rapidly forced all the tanks, and then sank them and fled for their lives. As a result, Milwaukee will have its usual gas supply within a day or two.

Worth & Hammer's livery stable, on Broadway, containing hundreds of horses was in the path of the fire. Some horses were safely taken away, while a number were stampeded.

The L. J. C. C. Kindergarten, the Temperance Institute and the Hildebrand Vinegar Works were also destroyed despite the dynamite, with innumerable small residences. Hansen's malt-house, within a few rods of the border line of Lake Michigan, with an adjoining distillery, was also destroyed.

When they caught, the elevator suddenly fell down to the top of the high ventilating shaft, and it was soon ablaze.

A howling blast of wind sent the flames across the street, and in an instant the malt-house, with its tall tower, broke out in spots about the water front. Milwaukee, Milwaukee, Milwaukee, after the hottest period was passed, and from the lower floors the burning grain was hurled down to the street.

Then from the windows of the large malt-house and from the eaves came jets of fire. The burning grain was hurled down to the street.

A large ventilating wheel in the face of the upper story was burning and whirling away from the burning grain. The burning grain was hurled down to the street.

The heat was intense within a block of the malt-house and it was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood. After their march to the north and east the flames swept a red path to the south and east.

Across the way from Roudy & Kip's was the store of J. P. Kistinger & Co., at 100 West Third street. Kistinger & Co. was a large store, and it was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

Three thousand people are homeless, and forty-six acres of blackened desolation within Milwaukee's boundaries mark the path over which the fire has swept. Militia are guarding sidewalks and crossings, and through the streets the members of the Milwaukee Light Horse Squadron ride with drawn sabres.

Although the fire is now entirely under control the ruins in places are burning fiercely, and it will be several days before the last spark is extinguished.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

The engines were engaged so long that it was fully twenty minutes after the first alarm that the fire was under control. It was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

The engines were engaged so long that it was fully twenty minutes after the first alarm that the fire was under control. It was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

The engines were engaged so long that it was fully twenty minutes after the first alarm that the fire was under control. It was a close call for the residents who were in the neighborhood.

When the fire broke out the majority of the engines of the Fire Department were at work in other parts of the city—there being at the time no less than three separate fires. One of these consumed five dwellings, but nobody went near it except a small detachment of firemen, who arrived on the scene before the fire was under control.

The entire fire department, consisting of eighteen engines and seven chemists, was overhauled from the start, and aid was rendered to the firemen by the fire engine coming from the former place and four from the latter.

FRICK AND BOODLE.

Said to Have Brought a Large Sum to Chairman Carter.

Carnegie's Man in Conference with Cabinet Ministers.

Report that $500,000 Was Placed in the Republican Safe To-Day.

All the fat tried out of the Pennsylvania manufacturers by those expert manipulators, Henry Clay Frick, of the Carnegie Works, and Christopher Lyman Magee, the star of the campaign, were in the city yesterday. Frick was placed in Chairman Carter's refrigerator this morning.

Magee and Frick arrived in the city last night, the former stopping at the Fifth Avenue Hotel and the latter at the Holland House, where Secretary of War Elihu is also stopping.

The sum and substance of Mr. Frick's offering for the Republican campaign has been placed in the safe to-day. By some the amount is placed as high as $500,000.

It was Postmaster-General John W. Wadsworth who induced Mr. Frick to take up a supplementary collection among the highly protected iron manufacturers.

When Mr. Carter, the Treasurer, filed his report, he found that they would be short at least a million, according to their schedule of expenditures. In this emergency an appeal for aid or assistance in getting aid was made to Milwaukee, who in a few days ago had been in the city.

Mr. Wadsworth has already been engaged, and he has been in the city for some time. He has been in the city for some time.

The conference had not broken up at 12 o'clock.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

Nothing to be said.

CAMPAIGN SAYINGS ILLUSTRATED.

CARL SCHURZ—The question is whether our National elect. is shall become mere auction sales.

BARONESS BLANC AS A STAR.

She Will Return to the Stage Set for Next Monday, on Mamie Hannan's Charges.

Her Debut to Be in a New Play at the Fifth Avenue Theatre.

The secret leaked out to-day, through Manager Frank G. Potter, that the Baroness Blanche, wife of Baron Frederic S. Blanc, contemplates a return to the stage as a star with her own company, an adaptation of one of Dumas's works and in "The Fringe of Society."

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.

Blanche, who has been in the city for some time, has been in the city for some time.